

Gartner: The Future of Work Requires Leaders to Embrace Radical Flexibility

The global shift from working in an office to working at home shattered long-held beliefs about the relationships between work environment, productivity, and responsibility. Now what?

Read this Gartner report to learn how leaders are embracing radical flexibility to build forward and create new work policies, new work patterns, and an office design focused on enhancing the employee experience.