

The CFO's Secret to Global Business Expansion Whitepaper

Globalization Partners and CFO Research surveyed C-level executives at U.S. companies to learn first-hand their challenges when it comes to global expansion – and their best practices to work through those challenges.

Here's a sample of what they found:

- 94% of those surveyed believe a global employer of record (EOR) can do a much better job of overcoming potential barriers to operating in a new country than a company can do in-house.
- 51% say legal and HR compliance is the top benefit of working with a global EOR.
- 58% said they already use a global EOR, or plan to do so within the next three years.
